

After having analyzed the Use cases, I have come up with the basic layout of how I think the classes should be laid out. It is organized as a simple hierarchy. The higher levels contain the lower levels. The exceptions are the blue lines, which are inheritance lines. The lower classes of those are specialized classes of the higher class they link to.

